

Anderson Fire Department Promotions

Due to some recent vacancies, the Anderson City Fire Department is proud to announce promotions to lieutenant, sergeant, and engineer that became effective January 1, 2012.

Sergeant Travis Poore was promoted to lieutenant. Travis is from Belton and has worked for the fire department for nine years. With this promotion, Travis is a company officer in charge of fire apparatus and crew on a daily basis. This promotion requires additional duties to fill in for senior officers when the need arises.

Engineer Paul Mcgaha and engineer Jermaine Galloway were promoted to sergeants. Paul is from Honea Path and has worked at the city fire department for 14 years. Jermaine is from Anderson and has worked for the city fire department for 12 years. Their duties are to fill in for lieutenants when one is off downtown or the two substations, to learn all job duties.

Firefighter John Urban and firefighter Bruce Reeves were promoted to engineer. Both are from Anderson and have been with the city fire department for three-and-half years. With this promotion, their duties include firefighting and driving the apparatus to and from alarms safely and also checking the trucks and equipment to make sure they're operating properly for response when the need arises.

The officer and engineer candidates are tested yearly with very competitive and challenging tests and practical exams. We would like to congratulate them for their hard work and dedication to the Anderson City Fire Department.
